CULLINGS FROM THE COURTS.

Mrs. Murry Brings Suit to Prevent Improvement of a Street.

Mrs. Murry yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court seeking to enjoin the city and the Board of Public Works from making any contract for the improvement of Alford street. The complaint sets forth that a remonstrance signed by two-thirds of the resident freeholders on the street was filed against the resolution, but the board ignored it and advertised for bids, to be opened to-day. Two questions of importance will develop in this suit. The defense will hold that the signature on a remonstrance does not count unless the signer resides on the street and owns property there. This is the substance of City Attorney Bailey's ruling, which has met with such strong opposition. The plaintiffs will maintain that the word "resident" as used in the charter means a resident of the city, not necessarily a resident of the street under consideration. The other question is whether certain of the remonstrants can be considered as bona fide property-owners. It will be remembered that in order to get a two-thirds remonstrance Mrs. Murry divided up a lot and sold it in narrow strips to certain relatives. The city will claim that these transfers were fraudulent.

Got Less than He Deserved. John Paxton, about forty-five years of age, pleaded guilty yesterday in the Criminal Court to attempted murder upon little Cecilia Lunsman, ten years of age, daughter of Charles Lunsman, residing at 197 1/2 Harrison street. The crime was committed July 15. He was sentenced to eight years in the southern penitentiary and to pay a fine of $100.

Did Not Get Away. Chief Detective Solana received word from Chicago that Ill. and Barry, arrested for working the change racket at the East Market Tuesday, were known there as thieves, and yesterday they started to leave the police court-room, having been released by the Mayor, he gave an order for their rearrest. The men started to run out the east entrance of the court-house, but two policemen covered them with revolvers and ordered them to halt. The men obeyed and were taken into custody. The woman who claims to be Ill's wife, and who was present with a child in her arms, fainted. She was carried back into the court-room and soon returned to consciousness. Ill is now slated as a known thief, twenty-eight years old, while the charge against Barry, who is thirty-eight years old, is that of associating with a known thief.

Does Not Favor a Change. Councilman Myers has a good cause for Ibel in a statement of the News yesterday that he was favorable to a change in the ordinance rates for gas. In conversation on this subject with a Journal reporter some days ago, Mr. Myers expressed himself as emphatically opposed to any raise of rates or to permitting the gas companies to dictate the use of meters. The only change he would like in the gas ordinance is one giving the city unquestionable authority to compel the companies to make extensions.

THE SOLDIERS OF CAMP GRAY

Mr. Sullivan Has Abused Them and They Propose to Make a Bayonet Charge.

How Heywood Got a Quorum for a Primary—They Will Put in a Claim for Salaries—Police Assessments.

The first tangible result of the anti-Sullivan resolution recently adopted by Camp Gray, the Democratic soldiers' organization, appeared yesterday in the shape of a neatly printed four-page newspaper called the Bayonet, edited by Isaac N. Bradwell, one of the officers of the organization. The reason of Camp Gray's revolt against the party is clearly explained in an editorial, which tells of the good work the camp has done for the Democracy in the past and the ill treatment its members have received at the hands of both Sullivan and the court-house ring. One of the grievances is this:

Thomas L. Sullivan, at a recent meeting of the workers of the party, made a speech in which he took occasion to thank the different organizations that, as he said, had done so much for him personally and for the party to which he belonged, but he would not deign his tongue with even the mention of Camp Gray, which, in fact, had done more to make him Mayor of the city than any two of the clubs named by him.

Here are a few pertinent paragraphs given in the Bayonet crowd at the point of "The Bayonet":

"D—n the old soldier anyway," says a present city official and candidate for councilman at large. It is needless to say he is a boon companion of Thomas L. Sullivan.

If any credit is due to the present city administration for its handling of the city's finances, that credit belongs to "Bud" Swift. The latter, however, instead of receiving the thanks of the "gang," is quietly killed by Sullivan's convention.

A candidate for councilman at large, while holding a city office and an appointment under the county auditor, thus drawing two salaries from the people, said to a reporter for the Indianapolis News that he thought Camp Gray ought to stand back and give some one else a chance. Camp Gray will now stand back and let Martin Murphy, Sullivan's friend, a chance to keep his hands out of the city treasury.

The Bayonet has no advice to offer to the Democratic soldier as to how he shall vote. It will simply state facts, and state them fearlessly. The soldier will simply exercise the freedom for which he fought, and vote as he pleases, or vote not at all, if such should be his inclination. This is democracy, pure and simple. Strenuous efforts are being made, and will be made, by the politicians who have used them so long, to bring back into the fold every man who has intimated that he is liable to vote this time as he chooses. Threats and promises, particularly the latter, will be freely used, as they have been in the past. These promises will mean just as much as they ever did, and not a whit more, and when the soldier is approached with the same old blandishments he will know just how much weight is to be given thereto. Politicians, the smooth and oily persuaders, are invited to come on with their gush. When the votes are counted they will see what effect it has had.

Heywood and His Quorum.

Councilman Myers told a good story the other day of the Democratic primary in the twelfth precinct, Second ward. As an active Republican, Myers made the rounds of the Democratic primaries in his ward to see whether the untried were turning out. At the place appointed for the twelfth precinct he found "Jim" Heywood, manager for the McCormicks, and advisory manager of the Citizens' Street-Road Company, "all alone." "What are you doing in here?" asked Myers.

"Holding a primary," replied Heywood. "With you'd come in here a minute and make a motion, so I can start up the machinery."

Myers was obliging and went in. Heywood at once called the meeting to order and asked for nominations for officers of the meeting. Myers moved that Heywood be made chairman and secretary, and it was carried unanimously. He then moved that Heywood be appointed a committee of one to suggest delegates. This was also carried without opposition. Heywood put himself and the only other two Democrats in the precinct on the list and had to go out of the precinct to get the fourth man. He reported the list to the meeting and it was unanimously approved. The meeting then adjourned and Heywood jumped in his buggy and started down town to report. When he got about half way down it occurred to him that he had forgotten the most important point, the election of a committee man. Myers was not there, and he was in a drowsy, sleepy condition, and was but one way out of it; he had to use the horse to make up a quorum.

"Horse," he cried. "This meeting will please come to order. The next business is the election of a committee man. Whom will you have for a committee man?" Heywood asked. But the horse made no answer. "Mr. Heywood is nominated. All in favor of Mr. Heywood will say 'aye,' and no one else." The horse made no response and, assuming that silence gives consent, Mr. Heywood declared himself elected and proceeded on down town.

Assessing the Wage-Earners.

That certain members of the police force are actively though covertly at work for the Democratic city ticket is known to no one better than Sterling H. Holt, chairman of the Board of Public Safety. The police force will be again assessed under Mr. Holt's direction, as was done in 1890, and Superintendent Colbert will see to it that the members so assessed will pay up, or know the reason why. It was in the last campaign that Colbert, then a gateman at the Union Station, addressed the following letter to the Democratic members of the force as the preliminary step in assessing them for political purposes:

CITY, Oct. 10, 1890.

Dear Sir—Would like to see you. Important. Yours respectfully, THOMAS L. SULLIVAN.

Union Station—40 North California. I bring this with you.

Themen understood this as an intimation to come to Colbert at either of the places designated and settle, and most of them went. On visiting him they were told that they were not to be assessed, but that they were to come down handomely. It was intimated with refreshing plainness that those who gave most could fare best, and some of the men gave as much as $25 out of their scanty salary to Mr. Colbert for the Democratic committee. Some of those who gave did not retain their places on the police force when the Board of Public Safety came on. While all who did not pay were soon dropped from the roll, with Colbert now as superintendent of police and Holt as president of the Board of Public Safety there was of course no objection on their part to the same system of assessment being used in this year. The police and firemen received notification to call similar to that above quoted, but this time Bakus is the man to be seen. He is chairman of the Democratic city committee's financial managers.

Will Not Make Affidavits. Repeated charges have been made from various sources that Robert N. Catterson, Commissioner of Public Safety, was soliciting votes for Sullivan. These charges are untrue, Mr. Catterson says. The charter makes it a criminal offense for a member of the Board of Public Safety or any of its appointees to solicit votes. Any member of the board who would do it—unless he had peculiar influence to close the mouths of those he solicited—would be a fool. Mr. Catterson is not only not a fool, but a very shrewd man. None of the voters whom he is alleged to have approached are willing to make affidavits to that effect. A fair sample of these is Hugh Stewart, ex-constable and Republican.

"I supposed that was what you wanted," said Mr. Stewart, yesterday, when asked about this charge by a reporter. "When I heard you had been looking for me. Now I don't know anything about the matter, and don't want anything said about it in the papers."

"How do you suppose the story started?" "Well, I suppose," remarked I made to that effect was carried to you."

No. You see, I have business transactions with Mr. Catterson, and I wouldn't want to get mixed up in any such scrape. Then I couldn't resist the exact words he said, anyhow."

"You know that soliciting votes is a crime."

inal offense for him, and that it would lose him his official head?"

"Say, would a little remark like that out him clear out? Well, I don't know anything about it."

Will Claim the Salaries at Least.

The way the average Democrat clings to office is something awful. The charter provides that the officers elected shall assume control on the Thursday after election, but it also provides that those now in office, elected by either the Council or the people, shall retain at least their salaries until their terms expire, though the Mayor may assign them to other duties. Though they may contemptuously override every other provision of the charter, they are now in office propose to cling to this one with might and main. Some time ago Mayor Sullivan announced that, even though defeated, he and his boards proposed to hold office until Jan. 1, when his term expires. The boards have no fixed terms, but cannot be ousted until Sullivan is out of the Mayor's chair. But the worst of it is that Mansfield, Bailey and the unspeakable Harold can cling to their salaries, if not to their offices, for a whole year yet. Their terms did not begin until last January and do not expire until Jan. 1, 1892.

"Even if you fellows do win," said City Engineer Mansfield to a Journal reporter the other day, "you'll have us Democrats in office for a year longer, or you'll at least pay us our salaries," and he chuckled in great glee. Mansfield and Harold can be assigned to other duties to their hearts' content, but they cannot do so without a great deal of harm.

The "Cabinet" Meets.

The monthly meeting of Mayor Sullivan and his cabinet last night was occupied almost entirely with a discussion of the estimated expenses of the city government next year. It will be impossible to get these estimates in shape for the Council by next Monday night, as the tax levy is not yet fixed and the exact size of the duplicate is not known. It is thus impossible to tell how much the receipts will amount to. After the meeting adjourned the Republican members of the board left and the Democrats continued in secret session until nearly 11 o'clock. One of the subjects of discussion was a scheme to introduce an ordinance next Monday night making a special appropriation of $50,000, and to call a special meeting of the Council next night to run up the bill. A full record of the meeting was kept, and those required civil-service rules were not mentioned.

Mr. Lynn a Candidate.

T. C. Lynn has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Council from the First ward. A. J. Mankin, one of the Republican candidates for Representative last year, and a leader in organized labor, is also spoken of as a candidate in this ward. Archie Hall is a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Ninth ward. He is a clean, honest and popular young man, a capitalist at the Panhandle shops. E. H. Kinney and John Furgerson, both Republicans, are contesting in the Fourth. J. E. Robertson and Charles F. Meyer will stand against Connelley and Gaster in the Sixth. Charles T. Mayer, in the Eighth, and James Sanders, in the Eleventh, both excellent men, are mentioned.

Mr. Ferguson Declines. W. Sinks Ferguson, who has been mentioned as a suitable Republican to make the race for Council in the Thirteenth ward, declines the nomination for business reasons. "I regret that I cannot make the race," remarked Mr. Ferguson yesterday. "I heartily thank my friends for their promised support, and can assure them that no matter who may be nominated I will be found, as I have always been, working for the ticket. The Democracy of the Thirteenth ward are badly demoralized, and any Republican who can spare time to make a thorough canvass has an excellent chance to win."

Colbert's Private Force. Superintendent of Police Colbert adds to the city's expense account by keeping a private secretary at a cost of $62 a month for about fifteen minutes' work a day. Jacob Fox is employed as drill-master for the force, and for two hours' work twice a week.
